Currículo

Patrícia Alves de Matos is a tenure-track Auxiliary Researcher at the Instituto Universitário de Lisboa (ISCTE-IUL) and CRIA – Centro em Rede de Investigação em Antropologia, Lisbon, Portugal, where she coordinates the research group Livelihoods, Politics and Inequalities. An economic anthropologist trained in Lisbon and London, she holds a PhD in Social Anthropology from Goldsmiths, University of London, awarded without corrections. Her research examines neoliberalism, precarity, labour, welfare, and social reproduction in Southern Europe, with particular attention to the moral economies and distributive politics shaping everyday life. She is Principal Investigator of the project Everyday Worlds of Welfare: Towards a Comparative Anthropology of Welfare Calculus and Livelihood Sustainability (EVA). She co-edits Anthropological Theory and is a member of the GER – Reciprocity Studies Group at the University of Barcelona. She is also a Visiting Senior Fellow in the Department of Anthropology at the London School of Economics and Political Science (2025–2028). She is currently co-editing the forthcoming volume Distributed Agency: Rethinking a Radical Concept for Challenging Times (under review), which reconceptualises agency through feminist, political-economic, and ethnographic perspectives. Her monograph, Disciplined Agency: Neoliberal Precarity, Generational Dispossession and Call Centre Labour in Portugal (Manchester University Press, 2020), provides a pioneering ethnographic analysis of youth, work, and dispossession in post-crisis Portugal. With over a decade of international research and teaching experience across Portugal, the UK, Spain, Italy, and Switzerland, she has contributed to numerous collaborative projects, including ERC-funded research on grassroots economies, post-COVID labour, and food provisioning systems. Her work combines rigorous scholarship with sustained public engagement on inequality, care, and human dignity.
